Salumatics announces senior executive appointments

Mississauga, ON (August 30, 2010) – Salumatics Inc. today announces two appointments to the executive management team. Effective September 7, 2010, Gloria Ringwood will join Salumatics as Vice-President, Business Relations & Development. Scott McMillan will be Vice-President, Business Services; Scott will also take on the newly created role of General Manager, Québec.

According to President and CEO Allan Magnacca, “With these appointments, Salumatics will maintain the core team values that make us a sought after partner in providing health information management solutions, and at the same time move the company forward in a new corporate direction. Growth for Salumatics will be obtained through expansion of our existing services and adding potential business relationships or partnerships.”

Gloria brings 25 years of executive management in the Canadian healthcare sector including experience in acute, chronic, mental health and rehabilitation medicine hospitals, community healthcare agencies, Local Health Integration Networks, regional health authorities, provincial eHealth, and provincial government. Gloria has extensive experience in health information management, strategic relationships, business transformation, project management and strategy. Gloria will be based at the Salumatics corporate headquarters in Mississauga.

Scott’s 23 years in healthcare and executive management includes a detailed knowledge of the health informatics markets in both Canada and the US. Scott’s experience spans community care, CLSCs, acute care hospitals and mental health settings as well as regional health authorities, provincial health ministries, and Health Canada. His key operational skills involve nurturing strategic partnerships, transforming healthcare processes and executive project management. Fluently bilingual, Scott will continue to be based in Salumatics’ Montreal facility.
